Shooting Affray Near Millersburg.

As the result of a difficulty which occurred near Millersburg, this county, early yesterday morning between George L. Collins and his son-in-law, James Hubbard, the latter was shot and seriously wounded.

While reports of the trouble leading up to the shooting are conflicting it is stated that Collins, who has for a number of years been engaged in the nursery business near Millersburg, and who is sixty-five years of age, together with a daughter, Miss Ida Collins and two sons, resided with Hubbard in the Conway residence near what is known as the second railroad crossing a short distance from Millersburg.

About four o'clock yesterday morning Collins called one of his sons to get up. The boy failed to reply to the call of the father who became abusive. Hubbard interferred which greatly incensed Collins and an exchange of hot words followed. The elderly man went out in the road near the house and called his son-in-law to come out and settle the matter. Hubbard declined to engage in the dispute further.

About six o'clock Hubbard was in the yard harnessing a horse when Collins approached with a shotgun. When he was within a short distance of his son-in-law he raised the weapon and fired the charge taking effect in his right thigh and arm, inflicting a serious wound.

The two sons of Collins went to Millersburg to secure a warrant for the arrest of their father, but in the absence of Squire Thomason, who was out of town on business, they were unable to obtain the warrant. Later a telephone message received by the officials here told of the shooting and that in all probability Collins would make an attempt to escape by boarding the train for this city. A warrant was issued and placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Talbott who met the train but Collins was not aboard.

A message received last night from Millersburg, was to the effect that Collins accompanied by his daughter, made his escape shortly after the shooting.

"Congress" Escapes.

During the performance of Woodford's Dog, Monkey and Pony Circus at the Grand on Wednesday night, "Congress," the $5,000 chimpanzee, escaped through a stage door which had been carelessly left open, and for several hours was at large on the town.

The manager of the circus offered a reward of $25 for his capture and at eleven o'clock that night the News job office turned out three thousand bills announcing the reward. Throughout the entire night men and boys were searching the town. At nine o'clock yesterday morning the animal was found secreted in the city rock quarry by young Kimbrough Duvall son of George Duvall, who finally captured him, and the two led a triumphal procession to the opera house here Mr. Woodford promptly paid over the promised reward and "Congress" was put on a twenty-four hour diet of bananas as a punishment for his offense.

Good Things.

Fresh fish, Baltimore oysters, celery and cranberries received fresh this morning.
